

An Ounce of Prevention...

By: Donna Weiss and Toni Milan

Owners - RespondRight

Imagine the unthinkable for a moment. You're working away at your place of business when, out of the blue, an employee collapses. What do you do? A call to 911 is obvious - but what if the person won't survive without intervention before the ambulance arrives? Would you know what to do? You would, if you were trained by RespondRight.

Early in our firefighter careers, when we responded to 911 calls to businesses, we'd find a lack of competently trained personnel to handle emergencies. We saw an opportunity to help make workplaces safer by training lay rescuers in the techniques that we use everyday. No one likes to think about workplace emergencies, but there's no excuse for not being prepared in today's society. At RespondRight, we work with you to train all personnel in the appropriate response depending upon the situation, including the correct use of equipment.

Our trainers are professional firefighters, paramedics and EMT's who bring real-life experience into the classroom. We know the latest safety and emergency response techniques and have access to the best tools to respond swiftly to workplace emergencies. And, we'll come to you, so you're trained at your place of business when it's convenient for you. We come to you for another reason - comfort. It's easier to learn and remember things in familiar surroundings. Our goals are always to make the training educational and fun - and make workplaces safer - one class at a time.

We offer training in a variety of emergency response modalities using the American Heart Association curriculum unless otherwise noted. This provides a two-year certification card upon completion.
